

"Things That Look Like Art" Exhibit Ends October 25

There will be an Opening Reception at Alemany Library from 6-8 p.m. on September 12 and an Artist's Talk at the library on September 23 from 6:30-8:30 p.m.

The exhibition includes three sets of works: Photographs That Look Like Art, Photographs of Art, and Photographs of Things That Look Like Art. Landweber says that these projects address his perception about art and its representation in a photograph.

Landweber's work has been exhibited in more than two dozen one-person shows and numerous group exhibitions. His photographs are in more than 80 public collections including San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, Los Angeles County Museum of Art, Los Angeles Museum of Contemporary Art, Norton Simon Museum and Oakland Museum of California.

Born in Washington, D.C., Landweber now lives in Berkeley. His photographs are available from Steven Wolf Fine Arts, San Francisco.

For more information, contact Lynn Sondag, Assistant Professor and Chair of Dominican's Department of Art, Art History and Design, at 415-485-3269 or email lynn.sondag@dominican.edu. For the library's hours of operation, call 415-257-0118 or log onto <http://www.dominican.edu/academics/resources/library>.

August 12, 2013